1.1 Introduction

The main achieve of this project is to make a e-commerce website with five different site pages which includes Home, Blog, Product, Research, and About Us. The website should include research section where the students are required to write the references of all different site pages side by side in research section with explaining how the HTML, CSS and JavaScript are applied.

Here In the designed e-commerce website, it includes the Navigation tab which helps the user to nav tag between different pages .This navigation bar is linked to all different webpages. The website also includes Home tab and the homepage contains short information about the site page. Along with that the homepage also contains the style css. The next tab that website contains is Blog which basically contains the technology effect of our life. Also, the website contains product. The popup form is stored. Every element in different page inside website is designed by HTML and styled by CSS.The other tab is Blog that contains the brief information about the technology on the topic how technology affects the people daily life with introduction, advantage and disadvantage. And explain how we have implement in our website.

1.2 Goals and Objectives

Our goal is to make a functional e-commerce website using languages like html, css and JavaScript. We are expected to work in coordination with our fellow team members. To build and proper website using tools like balsamiq, vscode.

The project's main objective is to set or make a clear and proper plan of how the website looks, functions and builds. Different pages are made with the proper use of html and css and javascript. Website not ony have to contain a homepage but product page, about us page, blogpage, research page etc. The main objective of this project is to give us practical experience for building a top quality site. It is very important as we can improve our knowledge in the field of website designing and coding skills.

1.3 Use of HTML, CSS and JAVA SCRIPT

- HTML

HTML (Hypertext Markup Language) is a standard markup language used for creating and structuring the content of web pages. It consists of a set of elements and tags that define the structure and presentation of the content. The source of

Team 1

HTML can be a text editor such as Notepad or a specialized HTML editor like Sublime Text or Adobe Dreamweaver.These editors allow developers to write and edit HTML code manually. Once the HTML code is written, it can be saved with a .html file extension. This file can then be opened in a web browser like Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox, or Microsoft Edge. The web browser renders the HTML code and displays the content according to the defined structure and styling. In summary, HTML is a markup language used to create the structure of web pages, and its source can be created and edited using various text editors or specialized HTML editors. The resulting HTML files are then viewed and rendered by web browsers.

- CSS

(Cascading Style Sheets) is a style sheet language used to describe the presentation and appearance of a document written in HTML or XML. It provides a way to separate the content from its visual representation, allowing developers to control the layout, colors, fonts, and other visual aspects of a web page. The source code for CSS is typically written in a separate file with a .css extension. This file is linked to an HTML document using the <link> tag, specifying the relationship between the HTML and CSS files. CSS can also be written inline within HTML elements using the "style" attribute. This allows for immediate styling of specific elements without the need for an external CSS file. To summarize, CSS is a style sheet language used to define the presentation of HTML. It separates the content from its visual representation and allows for the customization of layout, colors, fonts, and other visual aspects. CSS code is typically written in separate files and linked to HTML documents using the <link> tag.

- JAVA SCRIPT

JavaScript is a high-level, interpreted programming language primarily used for web development. It enables interactive and dynamic behavior on web pages by allowing developers to manipulate the content, modify the structure, and respond to user actions. JavaScript can be embedded directly within HTML documents using the `<script>` tag or placed in separate .js files and linked to HTML using the `<script src="filename.js"></script>` tag. In summary, JavaScript is a versatile programming language primarily used for web development. It enables interactivity, manipulation of web page elements, handling user actions, data retrieval from servers, form validation, and more. JavaScript code can be embedded directly within HTML or placed in separate files and linked to HTML documents.

1.4 TEXT EDITOR FOR PROJECT

Sublime Text is a popular text editor that is widely used by programmers and developers for various projects. It offers a range of features and customization options to enhance productivity and streamline the coding process. Here's an explanation of some key aspects of Sublime Text:

1. User Interface: Sublime Text has a clean and minimalistic user interface that focuses on simplicity and efficiency.

2. Cross-Platform Compatibility: Sublime Text is available for Windows, macOS, and Linux, making it accessible to a wide range of users regardless of their operating system.

3. Multiple Cursors and Selections: One of the standout features of Sublime Text is its support for multiple cursors.

4. Goto Anything: With the "Goto Anything" feature, you can quickly navigate to files, symbols, or lines in your project by using keyboard shortcuts.

5. Command Palette: Sublime Text includes a command palette that allows you to execute various commands, such as opening files, installing packages, or changing setting.

6. Split Editing: Sublime Text allows you to split the editor window into multiple panes, enabling you to work on different parts of your code simultaneously.

These are just some of the features that make Sublime Text a popular choice among developers. Its lightweight nature, speed, and extensive customization options make it a powerful tool for various programming tasks.

2.2Tool Used For Wireframe

A wireframe tool is a software application or online platform that allows users to create visual representations of a website or application's layout and structure. It is commonly used in the early stages of the design process to outline the basic framework and functionality of a digital product.

Wireframes serve as a blueprint or skeletal framework, focusing on the arrangement and placement of elements rather than detailed visual design. They help designers, developers, and stakeholders understand the overall user interface (UI) and user experience (UX) of the final product before investing time and resources into its full development.

Wireframe tools are instrumental in streamlining the design process, fostering collaboration, and ensuring that the layout and structure of digital products meet the intended goals and user needs. They help save time, minimize rework, and provide a clear visual representation of the product's functionality and user experience.

Wireframe tools offer a range of features and functionalities to streamline the wireframing process. Here are some commonly used features:

. Drag-and-Drop Interface:
. Grid Systems and Templates
. Collaboration and Sharing
. Exporting and Integratio
. Pre-designed UI Elements

1.3 Explanation of Contents of Website

- Homepage

A home page, also known as a landing page or front page, is the initial or main web page of a website. It is the starting point from which users can access various sections, features, and content within the website.

The purpose of a home page is to provide visitors with an overview of the website's offerings and direct them to relevant information or actions. It often includes a combination of text, images, navigation menus, and interactive elements.

A well-designed home page typically includes:

. Branding and logo

. Navigation menu

. Social media integration

. Visual elements

The specific elements and layout of a home page can vary depending on the website's purpose, target audience, and design preferences. The primary goal is to provide a user-friendly and informative introduction to the website and guide visitors to explore further.

Tags Used in Home Page

In web development, various HTML tags are commonly used to structure and format the content of a home page. Here are some of the tags commonly utilized in home page design:

<html>: The root element that wraps the entire HTML document.

<head>: Contains meta-information about the webpage, such as the title, character encoding, CSS stylesheets, and other metadata.

<title>: Specifies the title of the webpage, which appears in the browser's title bar or tab.

<body>: Encloses the visible content of the webpage, including text, images, links, and other elements.

<header>: Typically used to define the introductory section or the top part of the home page, which may include a logo, site navigation, and a page heading

<nav>: Marks a section of the webpage that contains navigation links or menus.

<main>: Represents the main content area of the home page.

<section>: Defines a distinct section within the home page, such as featured content, services, or product highlights.

<article>: Denotes a self-contained piece of content, such as a blog post, news article, or any other substantial information.

<aside>: Used for additional or supplementary content that is not directly related to the main content of the home page, such as sidebars or call-to-action widgets.

: A versatile container that is commonly used to group and style multiple elements together.

<h1> to <h6>: Heading tags that define different levels of headings, with <h1> being the highest level and <h6> being the lowest.

: Represents a paragraph of text.

<img>: Inserts an image into the home page.

: Creates a hyperlink to link to other pages or external resources.

 and <li>: Used to create unordered lists, which are useful for presenting items in a bulleted format.

 and <li>: Used to create ordered lists, which display items in a numbered format.

: Inline element used for grouping and applying styles to a specific portion of text or content.

<script>: Used to include JavaScript code within the home page.

These are the exampls of HTML tags commonly.

- Blog page

Blog page is the second page of the camera page website.A blog is a type of where the content is the collection of many different posts are there. Here, is the blog page,the topic shows about the technology . Since the blog page is the contains the images and text etc. Thev collection of posts would be about technology and the explainations of advantages and disadvantages about technology effect in our life. Also the blog page consists of images that I have kept.

Tags used to build the Blog page:
The important tags that are used to make the layout of the page are heading tag, body tag, div tag, p tag, image tag, article tag, main tag, footer tag, nav tag etc. The HTML of the blog page is created using these tags and the picture on the page about the technology is kept using image tag. Also, the background the page is styled by Internal CSS. The background of the heading tag is changed by the help style css. To write the advantage and disadvabtage of technology in the blog in the paragraph format is done by using heading and p tag. The meta tag is also used to provide the additional information in the HTML page which is not displayed on the actual page but can be seen in the HTML code. Br tags are used to give margin between the paragraph and heading of the page. The Image is built using image tag in the body and CSS. To write conclusion in the blog in the paragraph formate is done by use h tag and p tag in blog page.

- Product Page

Product page consists of navigation bar, icon, product card, discount banner, images of product, price and description. A product page is a web page or section of a website that provides detailed information about a specific product or service. Product pages works as a key component for e-commerce websites and online marketplaces, where users can browse and learn about different products before making a purchase.

Additionally, product page contains add to cart and buy now button. The buttons are clickable and when clicked a javascript pop message is shown where its says thank you for your purchase.

- Research

Research page is the page containing every detail about the pages and their reference pages. In this research section, we have compared our design and other methods with other's website and made a little comment describing about similarities or differences made in the certain page.

- ABOUT US

An "About Us" page is a section on a website that provides information about the organization or individuals behind the website. It is commonly found in the navigation menu or footer of a website and is often one of the most visited pages. The purpose of an About Us page is to give visitors an understanding of the organization's mission, values, history, and the people involved, establishing credibility, and building trust with the audience.

While there are no specific "tags" that are universally used in an About Us page, you may be referring to HTML tags or meta tags that are commonly used in web development. Here are some examples of commonly used HTML tags that can be used in an About Us page:

1. h1> to <h6>: Headings of different levels can be used to structure the content on the page, with <h1> being the highest-level heading and <h6> being the lowest level
2. : This tag is used to define a paragraph of text, which is often used to present the main content of the About Us page.

3. <img>: This tag is used to insert images into the page. It requires specifying the image source (src) and can include additional attributes such as alt text (alt) for accessibility.

4. : This tag is used to create hyperlinks. It can be used to link to external websites, social media profiles, or other relevant pages within the website.

Additionally, there are meta tags that can be used in the <head> section of the HTML document to provide metadata about the page. These tags are not visible on the page itself but provide information to search engines and other systems. Some common meta tags include:

. <title>: This tag specifies the title of the page, which is displayed in the browser's title bar or tab.

. <meta name="description" content="...">: This tag provides a brief description of the page content. It is often displayed in search engine results.

. <meta name="keywords" content="...">: This tag specifies a comma-separated list of keywords or phrases relevant to the page's content.

These are just a few examples of HTML tags and meta tags that can be used in an About Us page. The specific tags used may vary depending on the design and requirements of the website.

- Testing

Navbar Hover testing

Test no	1
Objective	Navbar Hover test
Action	Cursor is taken to the navbar
Expected Result	Hover effect will create a line
Actual Result	Hover effects created a line
Conclusion	The test is successful

- ## Javascript Testing

Pop-up Feature

Test no	4
Objective	Pop-up message testing
Action	Buy now button in the product page is clicked
Expected Result	Pop-up feature Is expected to run after we enter in home page.
Actual Result	Pop-up feature is shown.
Conclusion	The test was successful

Form-validation features

Test no	6
Objective	Form validation function testing.
Action	JS is applied to feedback form to see if validation works or not.
Expected Result	. Feedback form will not be submitted and will show error message until we fixed the error message
Actual Result	Feedback form was not submitted and showed error message until we fixed the error message
Conclusion	The test was successful

Conclusion:

In summary, this project work is done in group by fellow 4 members. We have done many mistakes and got help from different friends and youtube videos. Some pages code contains the youtube videos code. Here using VSC, sublime, CSS, HTML, JAVASCRIPT and balsamiq we created a well to do website. The project was really challenging as we faced many difficulties while creating the pages as the sometimes the code wont get executed or the design is not good as expected. Though it was though we still managed to pull of a average type of website so for that we a kind of happy. So, in conclusion this website was a fun activity for us to get involved.
